

Jessica Amoako is currently a 2nd-year medical student at Sidney Kimmel Medical College. She is a graduate of Rutgers University. Born in Ghana, she moved to the US when she was 12 years old. One of her main passions in medicine is finding ways to improve the diversity of medical spaces. She hopes to one day be in a position where she would have the full capacity to do so. Student Dr. Amoako is also interested in Emergency Medicine because she wants to practice in a specialty that will allow her to serve all types of patients regardless of their demographic or access to insurance. Aside from medicine, she enjoys drawing, going to art museums, and walking long distances to look for new restaurants around Philadelphia.
